PRINTABLE CALIFORNIA RETAIL FOOD CODE CARD The purpose of this print-out is to act as a tool that provides you with confidence to bring your own takeout containers when eating out or bringing home leftovers Keep this handy card in your wallet to share with others unsure about the legality of using your own containers when eating out!

INSTRUCTIONS

DO NOT print pages 1 & 2 Print pages 3 & 4, double sided Cut to business-card size Put some in your wallet to use when dining out and pass the rest out to your friends so that they're empowered to do the same!

Consumers are allowed to take a personal container as long as an employee fills it and there is no cross contamination with the utensil that is being used to serve the food.

CA Retail Food Code, section 114121

(b) Consumer-owned containers returned to the food facility for refilling may be refilled and returned to the same consumer if the container is refilled by an employee of the food facility or the owner of the container if the dispensing system includes a contamination free transfer process that cannot be bypassed by the container owner.
(c) Consumer-owned containers that are not food specific may be filled at a water vending machine or system.

Consumers are allowed to take a personal container as long as an employee fills it and there is no cross contamination with the utensil that is being used to serve the food.

CA Retail Food Code, section 114121

(b) Consumer-owned containers returned to the food facility for refilling may be refilled and returned to the same consumer if the container is refilled by an employee of the food facility or the owner of the container if the dispensing system includes a contamination free transfer process that cannot be bypassed by the container owner.
(c) Consumer-owned containers that are not food specific may be filled at a water vending machine or system.

Consumers are allowed to take a personal container as long as an employee fills it and there is no cross contamination with the utensil that is being used to serve the food.

CA Retail Food Code, section 114121

(b) Consumer-owned containers returned to the food facility for refilling may be refilled and returned to the same consumer if the container is refilled by an employee of the food facility or the owner of the container if the dispensing system includes a contamination free transfer process that cannot be bypassed by the container owner.
(c) Consumer-owned containers that are not food specific may be filled at a water vending machine or system.

Consumers are allowed to take a personal container as long as an employee fills it and there is no cross contamination with the utensil that is being used to serve the food.

CA Retail Food Code, section 114121

(b) Consumer-owned containers returned to the food facility for refilling may be refilled and returned to the same consumer if the container is refilled by an employee of the food facility or the owner of the container if the dispensing system includes a contamination free transfer process that cannot be bypassed by the container owner.
(c) Consumer-owned containers that are not food specific may be filled at a water vending machine or system.

Consumers are allowed to take a personal container as long as an employee fills it and there is no cross contamination with the utensil that is being used to serve the food.

CA Retail Food Code, section 114121

(b) Consumer-owned containers returned to the food facility for refilling may be refilled and returned to the same consumer if the container is refilled by an employee of the food facility or the owner of the container if the dispensing system includes a contamination free transfer process that cannot be bypassed by the container owner.
(c) Consumer-owned containers that are not food specific may be filled at a water vending machine or system.

Consumers are allowed to take a personal container as long as an employee fills it and there is no cross contamination with the utensil that is being used to serve the food.

CA Retail Food Code, section 114121

(b) Consumer-owned containers returned to the food facility for refilling may be refilled and returned to the same consumer if the container is refilled by an employee of the food facility or the owner of the container if the dispensing system includes a contamination free transfer process that cannot be bypassed by the container owner.
(c) Consumer-owned containers that are not food specific may be filled at a water vending machine or system.

Consumers are allowed to take a personal container as long as an employee fills it and there is no cross contamination with the utensil that is being used to serve the food.

CA Retail Food Code, section 114121

(b) Consumer-owned containers returned to the food facility for refilling may be refilled and returned to the same consumer if the container is refilled by an employee of the food facility or the owner of the container if the dispensing system includes a contamination free transfer process that cannot be bypassed by the container owner.
(c) Consumer-owned containers that are not food specific may be filled at a water vending machine or system.

Consumers are allowed to take a personal container as long as an employee fills it and there is no cross contamination with the utensil that is being used to serve the food.

CA Retail Food Code, section 114121

(b) Consumer-owned containers returned to the food facility for refilling may be refilled and returned to the same consumer if the container is refilled by an employee of the food facility or the owner of the container if the dispensing system includes a contamination free transfer process that cannot be bypassed by the container owner.
(c) Consumer-owned containers that are not food specific may be filled at a water vending machine or system.

Consumers are allowed to take a personal container as long as an employee fills it and there is no cross contamination with the utensil that is being used to serve the food.

CA Retail Food Code, section 114121

(b) Consumer-owned containers returned to the food facility for refilling may be refilled and returned to the same consumer if the container is refilled by an employee of the food facility or the owner of the container if the dispensing system includes a contamination free transfer process that cannot be bypassed by the container owner.
(c) Consumer-owned containers that are not food specific may be filled at a water vending machine or system.

Consumers are allowed to take a personal container as long as an employee fills it and there is no cross contamination with the utensil that is being used to serve the food.

CA Retail Food Code, section 114121

(b) Consumer-owned containers returned to the food facility for refilling may be refilled and returned to the same consumer if the container is refilled by an employee of the food facility or the owner of the container if the dispensing system includes a contamination free transfer process that cannot be bypassed by the container owner.
(c) Consumer-owned containers that are not food specific may be filled at a water vending machine or system.

call 1-800-237-2583 for more information on food waste prevention and other zero waste options

Visit WasteFreeSD.org or call 1-800-237-2583 for more information on food waste prevention and other zero waste options

Visit WasteFreeSD.org or call 1-800-237-2583 for more information on food waste prevention and other zero waste options

Visit WasteFreeSD.org or call 1-800-237-2583 for more information on food waste prevention and other zero waste options

Visit WasteFreeSD.org or call 1-800-237-2583 for more information on food waste prevention and other zero waste options

Visit WasteFreeSD.org or call 1-800-237-2583 for more information on food waste prevention and other zero waste options

Visit WasteFreeSD.org or call 1-800-237-2583 for more information on food waste prevention and other zero waste options

Visit WasteFreeSD.org or call 1-800-237-2583 for more information on food waste prevention and other zero waste options

Visit WasteFreeSD.org or call 1-800-237-2583 for more information on food waste prevention and other zero waste options

Visit WasteFreeSD.org or call 1-800-237-2583 for more information on food waste prevention and other zero waste options